The Daily Courant.

Thursday, September 2. 1714.

From the Scots Courant, dated Aug. 25.

Dornoch, August 19.

THE Right Honourable the Lord Strachnaver, having received the Proclamation for proclaiming his Majesty King George, did upon Tuesday last call together the whole Gentlemen of the Shire at his House of Duntrobin; where having erected a very large Bonfire, and placed a Hoghead of Wine by it, did with unexpressible Joy, drink a Health to his Majesty King George, to the Prince Royal, to the rest of his Royal Family, to the King's safe Arrival in Britain, to his long and happy Reign, to the Lord-Justices of Great-Britain, and drank to the Healths of a great many others his Majesty's Friends, all under the repeated Discharges of two of his Lordship's House-Cannon, and with Volleys of the Small-Arms of a great Number of his Men, who had also some Barrels of Ale given them to drink the aforesaid Healths: And his Lordship having as Sheriff of the Shire, and as Provost of the Burgh, made the necessary Preparations for proclaiming his Majesty here; did this Day, attended with the whole Gentlemen of the Shire, as above, and with a great many others from the neighbouring Shire of Ross, Proclaim his said Majesty King George at our Cross, all the People receiving the same with loud Huzzas, followed with several Volleys of Small-Arms: And at Night his Lordship having erected two large Bonfires at the Cross, and placing large Quantities of Wine and Ale thereat, again drank the whole Healths as above, and concluded the Night with all possible Demonstrations of Joy.

From the Paris Letter, dated Sept. 5.

Paris, Sept. 5. 'Tis advised from Gironde the 18th past, that the Barceloners defend themselves with unexampled Fury, but without Skill; that they have not lost fewer Men than we in the Assaults on the two Bastions the 12th and 13th, from which they dislodged us the 14th; and that in this last Action, the Priests and Monks as well as the Populace came to push of Bayonet with our Grenadiers; that among others a Capuchin was observed to dispute a Gabion a long time with a Grenadier, whom he wounded, but at length the Grenadier killed him; another Ecclesiastick after having wounded an Officer of the Grenadiers, seized him by the Collar, and though the Officer ran him through, he kept his hold and dragged him down with him, biting and scratching him in the Face as he lay on the Ground, and in that Rage expired. Other Advices of the 20th tell us, that on the 18th some Barks laden with Provisions entered Barcelona. The Affair of the Cardinal de Noailles, touching the Pope's Bull, is terminated intirely to his Advantage, and to the Confusion of his Adversaries, some of whom have been ordered by the King to reconcile themselves with his Eminence. The Duke de Beauvilliers de St. Aignan died the 11th past.

From the Paris Letter, dated Sept. 8.

Paris, Sept. 8. Letters from Nancy of the 1st tell us, that King Stanislaus had received at Deux-ponts certain Advice that the King of Sweden set out from Demir-Tocca the Beginning of August, to return home through the Austrian Hereditary Countries and through Brandenburg. 'Tis advised from Diepe and Havre de Grace, that for some Days past divers English Ships of War had been observed hovering on our Coasts, doubtless to look into our Ports and see whether any thing extraordinary was in Motion there. The Electoral Prince of Saxony, who arrived here 3 Days ago, is to go to Fontainebleau; whither the Cardinal del Giudice goes to Day to take his Leave of the Court, being to return to Madrid in a few Days, pursuant to Order from the King of Spain. The Cardinal de Rohan, the Archbishop of Cambray, the Bishop of Meaux, and the other principal Adversaries of the Cardinal de Noailles touching the Pope's Bull, are ordered by the King to be reconciled to his Eminence, who since the Conclusion of this Affair receives Visits continually from Prelates, and other Persons of Distinction as well of the Clergy as of the Laity. The King has nominated the Marshal Duke de Villeroi, Chief of the Council of the Emperour, and Minister of State, in the Place vacant by the Decease of the Duke de Beauvilliers.

Hager, Sept. 7. The Eight Men of War which this State joins to the British Squadron, are ready: For the speedier manning of them, Drums were beat up for Seamen; Vice-Admiral Wassenar is to command them. Preparations are making for the Reception of the King here next Friday; His Majesty (we are told) proposes to stay here till the Monday following, and then to put to Sea without fail, if the Wind permit. 'Tis now said, that the Treaty for settling the Barrier will not be negotiated at Antwerp but at Cologne: And 'tis believed their High Mightinesses will endeavour to persuade the King of Great-Britain to send thither a Minister, to help to accomodate that Affair the sooner. The last Letters from Hanover relate, that 'tis impossible to express the Grief which the People shew for their inestimable Loss by the Departure and Absence of their Sovereign, and of his Royal Highness the Prince, with his Family; to alleviate it in some Measure, his Majesty caused Immation to be given to the Magistrates, that they might ask some Favour of him, accordingly they desired (tis said) to have the Excise on Provisions taken off, and 'twas granted. They add, that his Majesty designed before he set out to cause the Debts of insolvent Prisoners to be discharged, and their Persons to be set at Liberty; all the foreign Ministers at that that Court, have received Orders from their Principals to Accompany his Majesty to the Place of his embarking in Holland.

riding at Spithead, are, the Captain (Sir Charles Wager) Captain Smith Commander;
